Court Day.

There was a small crowd in attendance at July court yesterday and little trading done. There were only three head of mules on the market. Mr. Walter Clarke bought one from Mr. Perkins for $175.

Sparker Refused to Work.

Mr. W. Ed. Tucker met with quite a painful accident on Sunday afternoon while out for a ride in his new auto. When between Seventh and Eighth streets, on Main, the sparker of his machine became dead. He went to the front and in the endeavor to turn the crank that starts the sparker it flew from his hand and knocked him with terrific force head-foremost against the fender of the machine. He received a deep gash in the center of the forehead and two beautifully colored eyes. He was stunned for several minutes but soon recovered and was at his place of business yesterday. He is a little disfigured, but still in the ring.

First National Bank Statement.

The First National Bank closed its seventh business year with a statement evidencing splendid business management, and in some features even more unusual than that made at the close of last December. The bank's capital is $100,000.00. Gross earnings the past six months aggregate $12,130.03. These added to undivided profits on hand, amounting to $5,000.00, left for distribution $17,130.03, and were disposed of as follows: Expenses past six months $3,201.71; bad debts charged off $55.00; dividend No. 4, four per cent, semi-annual, $4,000.00; added to surplus $5,000.00; undivided profits remaining $4,873.32. The addition of $5,000.00 to the bank's surplus places in that fund $50,000.00 or exactly one half of the capital stock. In addition the bank holds a fund for taxes amounting to $2,163.91.

A remarkable and unusual feature of this statement and one that will appeal to and interest, especially bankers, is the fact that it shows at the close of business June 30th, no overdrafts, no past due paper, and no discounts. The statement shows loans amounting to $321,135.10; deposits $222,851.16; cash, due from banks and United States Treasury $58,753.29; due to banks, nothing. The officers and directors of the bank are greatly pleased at the splendid showing made by the institution entrusted to their care, but they give all the praise for the bank's success to the hearty support of its customers, and of their willingness to assist the officers in every effort to comply with the National Banking Laws and the strict regulations of the Comptroller of the Currency.
